

Radisphere iPhone® Application

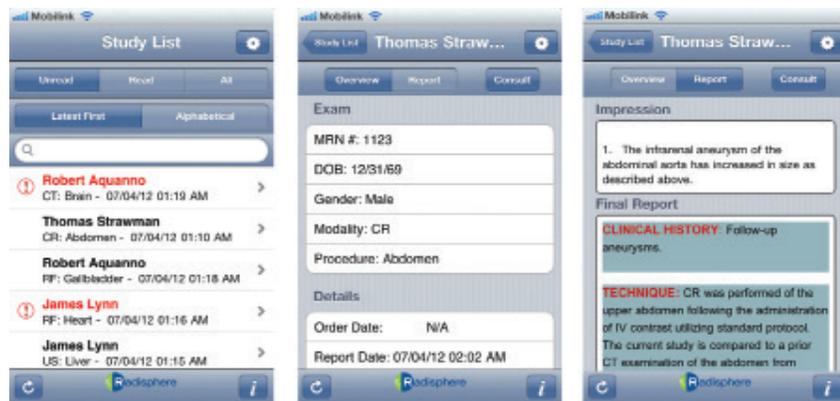

The HIPAA-compliant Radisphere iPhone® application provides referring physicians with easy access to final reports, addendums and critical findings. Physicians are automatically alerted when critical findings and other information are available for review, and they can call or FaceTime with Radisphere radiologists anytime from within the application.

Critical Diagnostic Information at Point of Care

The application not only facilitates the delivery of critical diagnostic information, but it also enables instant communication between physicians and radiologists when consultations are needed. Armed with up-to-date diagnostic information at the point of patient care, physicians are better equipped to provide quality patient care based on timely and comprehensive radiologic results.

Easy Access to Reports and Addendums

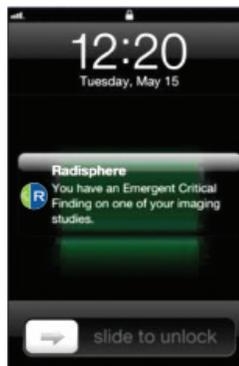

Physicians view reports simply by tapping on a patient's name in their study list. They can view additional case information in the Overview tab and consult directly with a radiologist by clicking the Consult button within the study. In addition, physicians can easily configure settings within the application to send push notifications for only the types of studies, addendums, and findings they prefer to receive.

The first screen illustrates how study lists are displayed and grouped by unread or read status. The second image shows the type of Overview information accessible within each study. The third screen is an example of a report finding.

Critical Findings Communication

Radisphere's iPhone® application immediately notifies physicians of critical findings in their imaging studies. Physicians can simply go into the application to review the report and critical finding. After reviewing the study, physicians can either confirm no action is necessary or contact Radisphere directly to speak with the radiologist who initiated the finding.

Example of a critical finding push notification.

The application includes customizable notification settings.

Consult with Radisphere Radiologists

To facilitate communication between referring physicians and Radisphere radiologists, the application provides two options for consultation.

From the consult screen which is accessible with the push of a button from within any patient study, physicians can call Radisphere directly or send a request for consult that prompts Radisphere to initiate the consult.

More Information

Radisphere is the largest and fastest-growing national radiology group in the United States with 150 radiologists and 35 exclusive hospital clients in 11 states. For more information about Radisphere's iPhone® application, please email iphoneapp@radisphereradiology.com or contact your hospital's Director of Radiology or Medical Director.